RAIL WORKERS TO TAKE STRIKE POLL

Vote On Accepting Wage Reduction Set For June 30.

Chicago, June 6.—Whether to accept wage reductions aggregating $110,000,000 or strike will be decided by railroad workers of the country within thirty days, it was stated tonight. Strike ballots are being sent out, returnable June 30. Approximately 1,200,000 men will be affected.

B. M. Jewell, president of the Railway Employees' Department of the American Federation of Labor, made the announcement tonight that the strike vote has been ordered. Mr. Jewell at the same time excoriated the railway labor board.

"By no stretch of the facts can this decision be justified," he said. He referred to a reduction of $59,000,000 for shopmen, freight car men and cleaners ordered by the board today.

Mr. Jewell charged that the board is not an impartial court.

"The effect will be an immediate confirmation of the belief among our membership that the railroad board is not an impartial court, created to dispense justice, but is a body created to help the railroads carry out their labor policy," he continued.

Workers Will confer.

Mr. Jewell left tonight for Cincinnati to attend the conference railroad labor representatives, which will be held there.

The branches of railroad workers who have been affected by wage reductions and who will ballot on a strike include the Federated Shop Crafts, the Maintenance of Way and Shop Laborers and the Internationals Association of Machinists.

The reduced wages mean a decrease of from 10 to 15 per cent from the 1915 purchasing power, according to Mr. Jewell.

"The employees cannot help noticing the contrast between their losses and the increasing profits of the roads," he said. "The pay roll losses of the shop crafts since 1920 as a result of the decisions and layoffs amount to approximately $350,000,000 on the basis of authoritative figures from the Interstate Commerce Commission and the railroad labor board.

"Similarly the maintenance of way employees are losing at the annual rate of $300,000,000.

"Altogether the policy of reductions in wages and in forces has taken from the employees at least $750,000,000. Such a reduction in payrolls makes the 10 per cent reduction in railroad rate, totalling a saving to the public of about $400,000,000, look pretty small. Some one is pocketing the difference."

Other Grievances Held.

The strike vote, it was pointed out, will not only be based on the new wage cuts, but upon several other alleged grievances of the shop crafts against the employers. The most recent of these is that concerning alleged unauthorized wage reductions made by twenty-one roads whose cases will be heard Thursday.

Disputes arising out of alleged "farming out" on contract work, declared by the board to be in direct violation of the transportation act, also are being considered in the strike vote, it was said.

These cases, the wage board announced today, will be heard June 26.

MRS. WM. H. RENFROW'S BIRTHDAY CELEBRATED

In the absence of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Renfrow, who were attending church last Sunday morning, friends and relatives gathered at their home, Valley View Farm, near Dundee, to pay honor to Mrs. Renfrow, whose birth occurred on that date, — years previous thereto. It was all a very well planned surprise to Mrs. Renfrow. She had no knowledge of the gathering until she reached her home when unexpectedly, friends began to emerge from all manner of hiding places in and about the premises. Mrs. Renfrow was conducted to the dining room where she found an elegant and abundant supply of all things necessary to provide a sumptuous feast spread, ready for the occasion, brought in by the celebrants.

Mr. Holbrook, after having spent approximately 8 years in the service of the International, 6 of which had been in Japan and China, was granted an 8 month's vacation and he together with his wife and baby, returned to Ohio County where seven months were spent with their parents Mr. and Mrs. Rowan Holbrook of Hartford and Mr. and Mrs. John T. #### CHILD BADLY INJURED

Austin U., aged two and one-half years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Owen Brown, city, was thrown from a pony Sunday afternoon, badly bruised and was unconscious near fourteen hours. First aid was administered by local physicians, and the little fellow was rushed to Owingsboro where more thorough examination could be made at the City Hospital.

The child was trampled upon several times by the pony and the wound most feared was upon one side of the stomach, but as the swelling had perceptibly decreased, upon advice of the attending physicians the child was brought home Monday evening. He has since been doing nicely and will be out at an early date.

Mr. Brown was leading the pony with three of his children upon it when the ponies' feet became entangled in some wire, frightening it so that it threw them off and before it became manageable it had trampled upon the little boy several times.

ELIMINATE DEADLY GRADE CROSSINGS

President Harding Expresses Sympathy With Campaign Now Instituted.

Washington, June 8: (Capital News Service).—The Interstate Commerce Commission compiles statistics of accidents involving loss of life or injury in which railroads are involved. According to these figures, last year 1,072 persons were killed and 4,818 persons injured in accidents at grade crossings. Most of these were automobile accidents.

As a result, a campaign, having as its slogan "Cross Crossings, Cautiously," is being instituted by the American Railroad Association, which will endeavor to impress upon all who use the road which passes over a railroad track, both in this country and in Canada, of the need of stopping, looking and listening and letting the train go by first.

Of this campaign President Harding has said, "The complete scope of such an effort would mean the saving of thousands of lives, the prevention of many more thousands of injuries and incidentally the prevention of a great property loss."

"Of course, the ideal solution is elimination of grade crossings, to which all possible energy and means should be unceasingly directed. But the extent of our country and its railroad mileage make apparent that not for many years of utmost effort could this be effected.

"There should be constant pressure for elimination of the danger spots, particularly in the more populous areas, pending which there is need for just the kind of preventative effort that your association is planning.

"Among these measures the most effective would seem to be to arouse in the minds of drivers a sense of their personal responsibilities. When thoughtlessness is allowed to usurp the place of vigilance, it too often happens, the scene is set for tragedy. Reminders and still more reminders of the need for caution at railway crossings are needed."

FEATURES OF THE REGISTRATION ACT

It must be remembered that voters cannot register by mail. They must apply in person and in the precinct in which they are legal voters.

Each voter will be called upon to state his or her political affiliation. This may be given as "Republican," "Democrat," "Independent," "Socialist," "Prohibitionist" and so on.

The penalties for fraud, illegal registration and interfering with registration are rather severe. If anyone disturbs or hinders the registration, he is guilty of misdemeanor and may be fined as much as One Hundred Dollars. A registration officer who fails to do his duty, may be fined the same amount.

Altering or destroying a registration book is a felony and may be punished by confinement in the penitentiary from one to five years. Anyone who breaks up, or attempts to break up a registration may be fined from One Hundred to Five Hundred Dollars and imprisoned in the county jail from six to twelve months.

When the registration is finished, the registration books are to be taken to the County Court Clerk's office. The law does not say which officer or officers shall do this. It would be proper for at least two of the officers, one from each political party to go to the books to the clerk's office, as is done in case of elections.

The registration officers must be sworn before beginning their work. They can be sworn before any officer authorized to administer an oath. If it is not convenient to go before an officer the registration clerk is authorized to swear the other three officers and then one of the judges can administer the oath to the clerk.

Persons who cannot read or write are entitled to be registered. If the voter can write his own name in the registration book he is required to do so. If he cannot write his name he should state that fact on oath to the registration officer and then the clerk will sign the voter's name for him.

Centertown got her two scores in the last frame when with one on Rowe drove out a home run in deep right, the ball eluding the outer gardener in the woods on the River bank, making the final score 10 to 2 in favor of Hart-

FOR FIGHTING SUNDAY MEASURES

Sabbath Observance Laws Harmful, Says Rev.
S. M. Smith

(Louisville Herald.)

Pittsburg, Pa., June 3.—Laws designed to force Sabbath observance ultimately will do more harm than good, according to Rev. Stewart Martin Smith, pastor of Donora Baptist Church here and chaplain of two organizations of World War veterans.

"The peace and quiet of the old-time Sunday can not be forced upon a people that is slowly but surely changing its definition of religion," declared the Rev. Dr. Smith. "I know the closed Sunday in Pittsburg, and I know the open Sunday in Paris, France. In Paris I discovered as much genuine piety as I ever discovered in Pittsburg."

"Naturally we of the churches favor strict Sabbath laws when thinking chiefly of our own interests, and we are loath to seem to argue against ourselves. But when we overcome prejudice we certainly are not unmindful of the many thousands who do not care to worship just as we do. None of us keep the Lord's Day as was originally done. Times change. So long as man gives one-seventh of his time to the spiritual demands of his nature it is his own business as to when, where and how he does so. The true Christian will never be disturbed, if he has within himself the perfect peace of which the Sabbath Day is a symbol."

Women Complicate Subject.

"This subject, like the question of prohibition, is greatly complicated by the increasing participation of women in public affairs. Not because women are better than men, but because they have been misguided in the matter of moral reform. In the first place they can only be reckoned with; they can not be reasoned with. Time and experience will teach the women of this country that they must not get too haughty in telling men what to do. Our best women already realize that their conquests must be in the realm of love and moral union. In Pennsylvania we have just had a remarkable experience in the shape of a recent primary election. It is said the women put Gifford Pinchot across as the Republican gubernatorial candidate. Mr. Pinchot himself says so. But this only partially analyzes the situation. Personally I am for Mr. Pinchot, and my opinion is not biased when I say it took more than the 'woman vote' to nominate Pinchot in the Pennsylvania primaries. The women can not get anybody into office, themselves included, if the men are against it. Pinchot's power in Pennsylvania was latent in his idealism and enthusiasm plus his association in the past with the picturesque Roosevelt. Thus there was added to his endorsement by the women of the state the endorsement of the farmers, for a farmer loves the pictures.

Must Consider Intuition.

"The only new political factor that has been introduced is that our practical politicians must now take into account the well-known intuitive mentality of the feminine mind. This is real and not a fancy. It is rooted in woman's emotional nature. The heart of a woman's world, and she will ever be prone to try to satisfy her heart at the expense of her head. If we ever have a woman President she will not be a brain woman; she will be a heart woman—a red rose and not a white rose. But this country will not have women governors or a woman for President until the men consent. All government is founded on force, and no matter how many peace conferences are held the fighting male is the only guarantee of the necessary force behind government. A woman could not hold any political office whatever if men as a class were against her. Every practical politician knows that if they wanted to do so men could keep every woman in the land out of office.

Sex War Wouldn't Last.

"A war of the sexes wouldn't last long. Mind and muscle subdue the world, and those are masculine attributes. When Cleopatra seems to conquer it is because Caesar and Mark Antony are willing. Such feminine supremacy is never good for the world, and somebody is sure to get all snarled up. Attempts to make men travel the straight and narrow way would be funny if not so tragic. It is the old error of failure to distinguish things that differ. Woman is the negative force in society and man is the positive force. Men have obtained power and office without the consent of women, but the reverse can never happen. Every woman officeholder today is in her place of power because the male voters consented. Current talk about the 'economically independent woman' Solomon may have placed his finger on the flapper. There are no economically independent women. All women owe any success they may have to the good-will of some man. Solomon may have placed his crown just for fun on the head of the Queen of Sheba, but Solomon was still the King."

HENS IN DEMONSTRATIONS SHOW SUMMER FEED VALUE

Lexington, Ky., June 6—On of the striking things being brought out by the 47 Kentucky farm poultry flocks that are being conducted as demonstrations by their owners who are co-operating with the College of Agriculture extension division in showing the best methods of managing farm flocks is the fact that mash, skim-milk or buttermilk fed to the hens during the summer helps increase their egg production. Many farmers are inclined to believe that as soon as their hens are allowed to range over the farm it is unnecessary to feed them in order to get the largest number of eggs, poultrymen at the College say.

"This is a mistake that seriously curtails the production of flocks in the State," J. H. Martin, in charge of the college poultry work said. "In order to produce the largest number of eggs during the summer, hens must be made to consume considerable mash or be given plenty of sour skim-milk or buttermilk in addition to the feed which they pick up while ranging over the farm. If the hens are fed mash, it is a good plan to confine them in the house until about 9 o'clock in the morning during which time they should have nothing before them but mash and plenty of fresh water. In this way, they consume the necessary amount of mash before starting to range. The mash should contain at least one-fifth anakey by weight if best results are obtained."

In addition to increasing egg production, this method of summer feeding has an added advantage, Mr. Martin pointed out. It allows the farmer to cull his hens more accurately, as much as the good hens will lay better while the lazier hens will not lay no matter how well fed.

Va., June 3—Father and son were pitted against each other in the municipal election just held at Hodgen'sville, and the son came out victorious, altho the remainder of the ticket on which the father was running was elected. The contestants were William Rickard, the father, who was the nominee on the Citizens' ticket for the position of street supervisor, and Charles Rickard, the son, who landed the job as the nominee on the Democratic ticket. ### INCREASE IN LEVY IS TO BE FOUGHT

Fayette County Fiscal Court Authorizes Suit.

Lexington, Ky., June 3.—Fayette county took another step forward in its fight with the State Tax Commission over the reassessment now in progress today when the fiscal court was won over to the stand of County Judge E. H. Doak. In the matter of a $500 fee for the two Lexington attorneys employed as special counsel. The fiscal court previously had refused to authorize the fee except with a clause providing that the action would not stand if declared illegal by the court. The proviso threatened the assessment fight for a time.

The Fayette County Farmers' Union this afternoon, after hearing Judge Doak and the two attorneys, G. R. Hunt and George C. Webb, went unanimously on record as opposing the reassessment and backing the stand of Judge Doak and the six other counties allied with Fayette in its legal fight to test the state statute governing the commission.

Today a communication authorized at a meeting of the county judges here the first of the week was forwarded to the tax commission, asking agreement in an agreed suit to test the constitutionality of the 1917 law, which governs the functioning of the commission.

"We are in the fight to stay," was Judge Doak's answer to published statements that the fight was about to fall thru. He explained that Shelby and other counties had agreed to make the reassessment ordered by the commission, but stated that they also have agreed to bear their part of the cost of the litigation.

FLAPPER GHOST LATEST

Have you a flapper ghost in your home? Theron Snyder, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., was disturbed night after night by the appearance at his second story windows of a bobbed-haired flapper and the apparition so got on his nerves that he decided to move. While packing up he discovered that a section of the floor was sawed away, and lifting up the loose boards he was flappergasted to find a suit of underwear bearing stains like bloodspots, a pair of stockings, part of a shoe and a wreath of flowers from a girl's hat. An ash-like substance completed the gruesome mystery and authorities are investigating.

PER CAPITA CIRCULATION

Uncle Sam's nephews and nieces were circulating over $5,350,000,000 on May 1. This means that you, gentle reader, should have had about $49 in your pocket on that day. This is almost a dollar less than what you should have had a month previous. Maybe you didn't get your share. In 1879 the per capita circulation in this country was only about $17, so you see we are doing very nicely. There is plenty of money, evidently; and the only thing is how to get hold of your share and keep hold of it.

THE MISTAKE UNPARDONABLE

The lady bather had got into a hole and she couldn't swim. Nor could the young man on the end of the pier, but when she came up for the first time and he caught sight of her face, he could shriek, and he did. He shrieked "Help!"

A burly fisherman samblered to his aid. "What's up?" he asked.

"There!" hoarsely cried the young man. "My wife! Drowning! I can't swim! A hundred dollars for you if you can save her."

In a moment the burly fisherman was in the sea. In another he was out of it, with the rescued lady bathed in his arms. Thanking his lucky stars, he approached the young man again. "Well, what about the $100?" he asked.

But if the young man's face had been ashen gray before, now it was dead white, as he gazed upon the features of the recovered dame. "Y-e-s," he said.

I know!" he gasped. "But when I made the offer I thought it was my wife who was drowning; and now—now it turns out it was my wife's mother!"

The burly fisherman pulled a long face. "Just my luck!" he muttered, thrusting his hand into his trousers pocket. "How much do I owe you?" Chicago Daily News.

Booze Is Not a Good Cure.

(From the Ames Iowa Intelligence.)

When a man comes to you all dabbled up with pain and declares he will die in your presence unless you procure him a drink of whiskey, send him to a doctor or else give him a dose of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy. There is a mistaken notion among a whole lot of people that booze is the best remedy for colic and stomachache.

NEGRO CONVICT IS MILLIONAIRE

LARGEST MASONIC TEMPLE

In Detroit 50,000 Masons chipped in to build a $5,000,000 temple which it is said will be the largest and finest Masonic building in the world. It will be 208 feet high and have a frontage of 400 feet. The drill hall will be 165 by 152 feet and there will be a complete club equipment with swimming pool, gymnasium etc.

LINCOLN ON LITIGATION

A quotation from Abraham Lincoln on the subject of litigation forms part of the Canons of Ethics adopted by the American Bar Association. It is as follows:

"Discourage litigation. Persuade your neighbors to compromise whenever you can. Point out to them how the nominal winner is often a real loser in fees, expenses and waste of time. As a peacemaker, the lawyer has a superior opportunity of being a good man. Never stir up litigation. A worse man can scarcely be found than one who does this. Who can be more nearly a friend than he who habitually overhauls the register of deeds in search of defects in titles, whereupon to stir up strife and put money in his pocket? A moral tone ought to be enforced in the profession which would drive such men out of it."

MY AUTO, 'TIS OF THEE

My auto, 'tis of the, short cut to poverty.

Of thee I chant,
I blew a pile of dough on you two years ago.

And now you refuse to go

Or won't or can't?

Through town and countryside, you were my joy and pride,

A happy day.

I loved thy gandy hue, the nice white tires so new,

But now you're down and through,

In every way.

To thee, old rattletrap, came many bumps and knocks,

For thee I grieve.

Badly thy top is torn, frayed are thy seats and worn,

A whooping cough affects thy horn

I do believe.

Thy motor has the grip, thy spark plug has the pip,

And woe is thine,

I, too, have suffered chills, ague and kindred ills,

Endeavoring to pay my bills,

Since thouwert mine,

But by that time the striped intruder, apparently not having noted anything particularly appetizing about the switchboard equipment, or perhaps having concluded that the postmaster was too tough to eat, had returned to the jungle, and the postmaster, still alive thru no fault of his own, was able to boast that he had checked the rules of the service, come what might.

"DUMB BELL" DRESS FLAYED BY LINDSAY

Sartorial Idiosyncrasies Arouse In Of Famed Denver Juvenile Jurist.

Denver, June 3.—Sartorial idiosyncrasies should be included in the "tests" of the Denver Juvenile Court psychoanalysis chart, according to Judge Hen H. Lindsay, who declared, in sentencing a youth for delinquency, that oil-smeared hair, belt-holting trousers, low-cut vests and "ruff-back" sleek haircuts were an indication of moral weakness. The noted jurist then proceeded to flay "dumb-bell" dress.

Judge Lindsay directed that in the future officers of the court add a notation on the cut of the hair and style of dress to the physiological and psychological data and family history now a part of regular reports on delinquency cases.

Judge Lindsay announced his newly found physiological observations when Howard Crane, 19, appeared before him on a charge of having violated a probation he had been placed on after conviction of stealing an automobile. Young Crane left the jurisdiction of the court for two months and went to Texas.

Crane is a tall, stoop-shouldered youth, whose long hair was combed straight back to the collar of his coat and shone like a patent leather shoe—a style which the court said, is popular among youths brought to court for amorous offenses.

"Son," Judge Lindsay said when Crane appeared looking like a matinee idol, "how did your hair get that way?"

"I use water to make it lie down," Crane responded.

"But why do you cut it that way?" the court asked, continuing:

"It is a strange thing that haircuts of that type seem to be correlated with a certain kind of weakness. Do you spend your afternoons at drug store fountains sipping lemonade thru a straw?"

Judge Lindsay declared himself in favor of bobbed hair for girls, but frowned on the "male flapper."

"I only wish I was sending you some place where they would give you a man's haircut," Lindsay announced in sentencing Crane to thirty days in jail.

They not only have to contend with painful gums but the stomach is disordered, bowels loose and the body uncomfortable. The best help you can give the little sufferer is McGee's Baby Liniment. It corrects sour stomach, cools and quietes the bowels and helps digestion. Price 35c and 60c per bottle. Sold by Ohio County Drug Co.

FIRST YEAR OF FIVE-YEAR POLAR EXPEDITION STARTED

Seattle, June 3.—The auxiliary powered schooner Maud, bearing the Amundsen Polar basin scientific expedition, sailed from Seattle at 3:40 o'clock this afternoon for Nome, Alaska, on the first leg of a five-year voyage thru the Arctic ice pack. Capt. Oscar Wisting, sailing master of the Maud, commanded the vessel. Poin Amundsen, chief of the expedition, having decided to proceed to Nome by steamer sailing tomorrow.

The United States navy tug Ma-hopas and a flotilla of cruisers from the fleets of the Seattle and Queen
City Yacht clubs escorted the Maud

"MEN WANTED" SIGNS APPEAR IN CHICAGO

Chicago, June 3.—Signs of the times are seen here in the changing of the cry for "jobs" to the outbreak of signs for "men."

Requests to the Illinois State Free Employment office jumper from 5,568 in March to 6,669 for the first twenty-five days in May.

"Within thirty days I feel sure that any man who will work will be able to get a job," Charles J. Boyd, secretary of the employment service, declared.

Huge increase in building activities presage even larger demands for men this summer, Boyd stated. Needs for labor from basic industries is also on the upturn.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

CLIFF DWELLERS' ORIGIN AGE AND FATE SOUGHT

Washington, June 3.—Dr. J. Walker Fewkes, chief of the Bureau of Ethnology, Smithsonian Institution, has left for Colorado to excavate a recently found ruin which is expected to throw new light on the origin and fate of the cliff dwellers.

Special attention will be given to a large circular structure in the Mesa Verde National Park, unlike any that has been found in the West. It measures about 250 feet at its base and has a depressed center, and evidence was used for some communal purpose.

This ruin is near Far View House, a pueblito of the Mummy Lake group. Near it is a necropolis which is being explored for remains of the cliff dwellers.

It is proposed to strengthen and otherwise repair the shattered walls of the communal ruin so that tourists may view it in a condition approximating its first appearance. It slightly resembles the famous Sun Temple discovered in the Mesa Verde Park seven years ago, and the large circular ceremonial rooms recently excavated at Aztec, New Mexico.

Mr. Fewkes will accompany his work with campfire talks for tourists and those visiting the park to study the cliffs.

Cut This Out and Take It With You.

A man often forgets the exact name of the article he wishes to purchase, and as a last resort takes something else instead. That is always disappointing and unsatisfactory. The safe way is to cut this out and take it with you so as to make sure of getting Chamberlain's Tablets. You will find nothing quite so satisfactory for constipation and indigestion.

ILLINOIS MAN HOLDS SUNDAY SCHOOL RECORD

Danville, Ill., June 3.—W. B. Bartlett, bugler at the National Soldiers' Home, is a good boy.

Bartlett, a veteran of the Spanish American War who saw service with the American fleet, has attended Sunday school regularly for twenty years. He says he has not been tardy once in all this time.

WOODPECKER HOLDS UP FAST PASSENGER TRAIN

Moyer Junction, Wyo., June 3.—A fast mail train on the Oregon Short Line was held up near here by an ordinary woodpecker, delaying the train thirty minutes. According to the engineer's report, who stopped the train when he discovered the block signal system was out of order, the woodpecker had pecked one of the wires of the system in two, in the evident belief that he had captured a worm.

FLATTER IN POLITICS

According to Mabel Vernon, suffrage leader, the flapper's influence in politics is being felt, and she considers it a good thing. "Too many people see only the short hair and short skirts of the flapper, but she thinks long thoughts and has long visions. A 'reform' is definitely established when it is accepted by the flapper, who is a good touchstone for the fundamental values of grown-up theories."

CRATER, LONG ACTIVE VIRTUALLY DORMANT

Hilo, Island of Hawaii, June 1—All lava flows in the lower levels of the Kilauea volcano area virtually had ceased late today and there have been no ground tremors since yesterday. The long active crater of Kilauea appears virtually dead. Prof. Thomas Jaggar, government volcanologist, who has been camping in the region of the recent eruptions, believes Monday's outbreak in the previous dormant Mauna Ulu crater may change the entire situation at Kilauea.

RUN NEWSPAPER FOR DAY

Members of the Sioux City Women's Club took over the editorial, news and business management of the Sioux City Tribune for one day recently and issued a 48-page edition "all by their lonesome." A society page featured Myman in social activities and pictures of the prettiest men were exhibited to readers. The club got about $1000 of the advertising proceeds, which will be applied on its building fund.

"AW, RATS!" SAY RAT CHASERS

There are at least two young women in this country who show a professional disdain for the terrible rat. They are Miss Anna M. Wright and Mrs. D. M. Staples. Both fill their romantic hearts so with joy as to jump around after rats, kicking one here, swatting one there, slapping, knocking and generally roughhousing them about from pillar to post, from cellar to garret. At present they are causing great consternation in the ranks of the rodents in Nashville, Tenn. They are, in plain English, professional rat exterminators.

BEGGARS CROWD BERLIN'S STREETS

Berlin, May 11.—(By Mail.)—Altho public mendicancy is forbidden by law, the streets of Berlin are full of beggars who especially after dusk, impinge upon passers-by with harrowing tales, some of which may be true.

Mutilated war victims, who exhibit genuine scars, are always sure of public charity, but many others of the fraternity resort to more or less transparent tricks to excite compassion. They have established a "trade union" in a northern suburb, where, according to reports, about 150 lesraers are being trained in the art of begging, including "making up."

The theoretical part of this course alone takes six weeks, and is followed by a practical course at race meetings and at doors of churches, theaters and cafes.

The city is divided into districts by the "union," which pinches a certain number of certified pupils in charge, changes shifts weekly and collects and distributes the proceeds. Every day, it is stated, an average west end district brings in about 3,000 marks. Certain favorite sections command premiums up to 500 marks per day.

These professional beggars are keen judges of human nature. Wealthy Russians are said to be their best patrons. Americans, on the other hand, are an everlasting puzzle to them. Sometimes, they say, Americans are extremely generous and hand out five, ten or twenty mark bills with princely liberality, but others refuse to give anything.

GIGANTIC METEOR

HIT STATE, BELIEF

Lexington, Ky., June 1.—Geologists at the University of Kentucky are today trying to locate the landing place of a giant meteor which was seen Tuesday night at 7:30 o'clock by persons in several parts of the Bluegrass. The heavenly body, of great brilliancy, is thought to have fallen in the east, and all persons who saw it are asked to communicate with Dr. A. M. Miller, head of the department of geology.

Residents of Danville were frightened when the great flaming mass flashed across the sky, being visible there for almost a minute. Gilbert Smith, a student at the university, was on the campus when his attention was attracted by the light. He was the first to report the occurrence as he is a student of geology, and is assisting faculty members in attempts to locate the meteor, or fragments.

AN UNEXPECTED MEETING

One side of the famous Devil's Glen was open to the public. The other side was kept strictly private by the landlord. An American visitor, ignoring the notice-boards, was walking up the private side of the glen when he was met by a choleric old gentleman, who shouted. "What do you mean, sir, by trespassing on this property?"

"Waal," said the American, "it don't make any difference to you, do it?"

"Do you know, sir, that this is my property?"

"Snakes alive!" replied the American, affably. "Ef that aren't interesting! I know this wuz the Devil's Glen, but I never expected to see the proprietor!"

THAT DREADED INNOCENCE

Little Tommy, the terror, had been a good boy for most of the day, and was permitted to sit at the table along with his parents' distinguished visitors, Mr. and Mrs. Brown. He had received strict instructions to ask no questions, and Tommy tried hard to obey. But Nature won, and he suddenly inquired: "Mamma, do Mr. and Mrs. Brown still play in the band? Will they play us something when tea is over?"

"Why Tommy, Mr. and Mrs. Brown don't play in any band. Why do you ask such a question?"

"Because," said the terror, in disappointed tones, "I heard you tell papa that Mr. Brown played second fiddle to his wife."

There was music after tea, and Tommy was the drum.

FAIR ENOUGH

Out in Wyoming a train ran over the cow of a farmer named Ole Olson. The claim adjuster went out to the home of Ole to adjust the claim likely to be made by Ole for the loss of his cow.

"Well, Mr. Olson," said the claim adjuster, "I came out to see you about your cow being killed on our track. What are you expecting to do about it?"

"Well," said Ole stoutly, "I am a poor man, an' I can't do much because I am so poor, but I'll try to pay you five dollars."—Judge.

HAS MUSIC TABOOED AT HIS FUNERAL SERVICES

White Hall, Ill., June 3.—As you live so should you die. So thought George W. Henderson, aged 77 years, who at his own request was buried in a manner symbolic of his life. Henderson, an eccentric bachelor, who lived alone on a farm near here, requested that no singing or preaching mark his burial. He was laid away in the requested quietude.

MARY IS A BIG GIRL NOW

Cute little Mary (Pickford), also known as Mrs. Douglas Fairbanks, got a cute little income of $1,123.325 in two years, it was brought out in court testimony. An unskilled laborer working for 20 cents an hour would have to labor daily for 2,265 years to accumulate this amount, but then some people are just as happy when they don't have so much money.

Best Remedy for Stomach Trouble.

"I am pleased to have the opportunity to say a good word for Chamberlain's Tablets," writes Mrs. Mamie Bertel of Moherly, Mo. "I think they are the best remedy for stomach troubles, biliousness, and constipation I have ever used. I have taken them off and on for two or three years and they always relieve indigestion, tone up the liver and make me feel fine."

CONSISTENT GROWTH

In 1900 when the American Telephone and Telegraph Company took over the American Bell Telephone Company, there were 7,500 stockholders. In 1905 the number of stockholders had increased to 1,750. In 1910 there were 40,000 stockholders, in 1915 65,500 stockholders and there are now more than 201,000 stockholders, more than half of whom are women. The average number of shares held by stockholders is 28.

POSED AS "HUBBY"

It took three weeks after her marriage to Mrs. Irene Gaul, of Des Moines, for Mrs. Janette Simmons to discover that she had married a "she" and not a "he." And it took 17 months more to get up nerve to have the gay deceiver arrested. Mrs. Gaul dressed as a man, of course, and put in her workday flapping pancakes in a restaurant. Mrs. Simmons will probably look before she leaps the next time.

KEEP FLOUR IN DRY PLACE; AVOID ODORS

Like butter, flour absorbs odors readily. It should not be kept where there are onions, fish, vegetables or other odorous substances, nor in a damp room or cellar. Keep it in a cool, dry, airy room, where it will not be exposed to a freezing temperature, nor to one above seventy degrees.

Let's see, under whose administration did all of those acres and all of those fraud contractors operate?

If, according to Conan Doyle, people remain married forever in Heaven, will the Movie Stars and the very rich want to go there? But there's the camel and needle-eye episode though, to prevent worry of the latter class.

In response to notices recently sent out we have had a very generous return from our subscribers and others.
People, as a rule, become in arrears with the average Country Newspaper through neglect and oversight. The accumulations to such an account are so slow that but little thought is given to the subject, hence the mind is not taxed and the matter simply slips by from day to day, and frequently, from month to month. We deeply appreciate those who have answered the call and we do not wish to say the benediction without giving those without the fold another chance. So you who have not had your names written on that book "Up Yonder," the one we mentioned last week, with the word "Square" opposite same are hereby given another invitation and assurance that you still have time to get in before the eleventh hour.

Announcement has gone forth that the Rail Workers of the Nation would take a poll on June 30th, on whether or not a general strike is to be called or the proposed reduction in wages is to be accepted. Some strikes have been, are and will be, in the interest of justice. Others may be classed as being otherwise. Always, the people in-between the stones catch it in the grind. There can be no more doubt that wages must be adjusted together with other conditions, than there is of the fact that day follows night. When a man of ordinary ability, with no particular outlay for high or special training can pull down from six to ten and eighteen dollars per day, while his brother who may be forced to follow other lines of employment, yet endowed with as much natural ability and as willing a worker, is forced to accept from two to five dollars for as much labor performed, there is something radically wrong.
The Country is tolerably well fed-up on strikes and strike talk. It's time both employer and employee were getting down to business—hitting the level traversed by the "great common people." When a fair realization of that fact is adhered to the better it will be for the Country and those who keep continuously before the public these elements of fear and disturbance.

WASHINGTON COMMENT

That the United States is poorly served by its present immigration laws is evident to any who take the trouble to study the problems of illiteracy, of undesirable aliens who fail to understand or live by the standards of American life, or who follow the curious methods by which admission to this country is sometimes obtained—fraud, smuggling, or lack of care on the part of authority.

Any immigration law, no matter how justly framed and wisely administered, will probably occasionally permit injustice and cause suffering, but there seems to be no real reason why sufficient discretion cannot be given proper authority to make humane exceptions to impersonal law, when the law interferes as between man and wife, mother and child, or son and mother.

A case in point is that of the mother of "Charlie" Chaplin. Mrs. Chaplin was admitted to this country as an alien, suffering from mental disease (due to shell shock) and permitted to remain for treatment for a year. When the year was up she became subject to deportation as an undesirable alien, regardless of the fact that her nationally famous son, worth well over a million dollars, was doing all in his power to make her happy and comfortable, was providing her with a home, doctors, nurses and treatment.

The case is being adjusted. It took "special rulings" and "opinions" of legal lights in the government to do it. It should have needed nothing more than proper evidence before a commissioner of immigration. Those who think that "law is law," regardless of personal cases, might try imagining their own mothers in Mrs. Chaplin's place; perhaps then they will see more clearly the need not only of intensive restriction of immigration, but of humanizing the administration of such laws.

The Civil Service Commission is under fire. Herbert D. Brown, chief of the United States Bureau of Efficiency, has transmitted a report to President Harding in which he stresses the fact that the commission is working on lines laid down forty years ago and that its principle aim is to keep out the unfit from government positions, never to obtain the most fit.

All Washington has known this for the entire forty years! And it also knows the reason—the desire of the legislator to save as much from the "spoils system" wreck as he could. With government positions no longer to be distributed by congressmen and senators to "deserving" henchmen at "home," the next best thing was to have an "eligibility list" from which government officials could make a choice, which "choice" might be influenced by sub rosa suggestions from the congressman or senator.

Never in the history of the government has it been best served by those who gave out its positions to those who would work for Uncle Sam. The best man or woman is not sought merely a grade of man or woman who can pass the examination. The whole idea, anyway, that the man or woman who can pass an educational test with the highest percentage is therefore best qualified to fill any clerical position is nonsense. No business man selects a bookkeeper because he can pass 99 per cent in geography or history; no mercantile house selects a buyer merely because he knows grammar or algebra better than other persons. The banker wants a bookkeeper who has three things: ambition, honesty and knowledge of bookkeeping. The mercantile house wants a buyer who knows goods, people and who has honor and ambition. Why shouldn't the government select in the same way? And why not select the best to be found—not merely one of the run-of-the-mine passers of examinations?

Mr. Brown has rendered a great deal of service to the government already in unearthing a thousand inefficiencies. If this report of his brings action, he will have reached the height of his career.

Mr. C. F. Hartford, of Owensboro, who has been spending a few days in Ohio County was in town yesterday.

HIS ANGEL

By MOLLIE MATHER

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

Geoffrey, in his woolly bathrobe, kept a watch of the stair. For either up or down those stairs his good Samaritan, must go. The hall of the rooming house remaining for a time silent, Geoffrey sought the window. He was still weak and uncertain as to walking, but as it was possible that a light step might ascend that old stair while he was not there to see, he returned to his post.

He must have been in this gloomy room now, for more than two weeks. The flu had put him out of his head, so that he could not measure time.

Its interest vanished with his sudden illness. All that Geoffrey Gordon could distinctly remember was sommoning his landlady, with the confused request that the woman who cared for his room be retained to give him such care as might be necessary.

The doctor, used to calls of the friendless and unremunerative, looked the unresponsive Geoffrey over, pronounced his case grip, and departed, leaving medicine behind. It was not his affair, certainly, whether that medicine was bestowed or not.

"What's his name?" the doctor briefly asked Mrs. Simpson.

"He says it's Stinson," she replied, "George Stinson."

So the author who loved to study at close range his subjects, who wrote of people as they are—lay among those of whom he would have written, himself, and unknown.

Across the blur of his pain came then an angel directly from heaven, to minister to him. Like a frightened child, Geoffrey Gordon realized the reassuring comfort of firm, soothing hands. Over his hot forehead the cool hands moved rhythmically, charming his pain away. And when he awoke to momentary consciousness the following morning, the faded, insufficient coverlet had been miraculously replaced by warm blankets of dainty satin bindings.

It was when he reached weak but sure convalescence that jellies and tempting small cakes and muffins found their way to the stand by the bed. The delectable cakes which he ate so hungrily brought to him a sting of mother-memory. The mother of his boyhood—gone so long, but still bitterly missed.

Geoffrey, watching the stair, knew at last why success and the many beautiful things of life still left a great lack which had never been filled.

And so, wondering, speculating, he questioned, and vainly, concerning his secret deliverer—and watched hopefully, despairingly, the stair. For the girl or woman must of course be an occupant of this dingy rooming house. And to settle this eager curiosity of his he must know her.

Many went down the stair each morning to places of employment, many came back each night. Soon Geoffrey must go away, but first he must know.

There was one lovely girl; her dark, dancing eyes sought the invalid out in his watching place.

At last in desperation the author called to the girl under pretense of asking her to forward a message to Mrs. Simpson. The girl smiled charmingly.

"Sure, I'll tell the old dame," agreed his supposed angel, "but you'd better believe I'll take her some time to get a move up here. Some weight, that old girl. Any other little thing I can do for you?"

"No, thank you," answered Geoffrey sadly.

That night inspiration came to him—one who had so unselfishly cared for a sick stranger would naturally still be interested in his condition. The next day found him suffering an apparent collapse; his groaning might even have been heard by a sympathetic listener off the long hall. Geoffrey began his groaning directly after customary office closing time. He deducted that his Angel was among the employed. She was—and at that precise moment opening a can of pineapple for her supper.

"Dear me," murmured the Angel, "that sounds exactly like my sick man. What a pity he has no mother or sister or wife to look after him!" She decided to take a peep into the invalid's quarters. When her wide-eyed glance revealed her former charge again prostrate, Bessie MacDonald, late of Grove Village, slipped noiselessly into George Stinson's room. She carried some of the pineapple with her. As she supposed, the patient's lips were hot and dry; thoughtfully considering, Bessie fed him the pineapple.

Furtively the patient opened his eyes.

No, she wasn't exactly pretty, nor modish at all. Her soft capably molded hair made assured, graceful movements toward his lips. Her dark brows drew together concernedly, as she bent over him. Geoffrey remembered that same dear, anxious look in his mother's face long ago. Suddenly, his eyes upon her, the girl smiled. Why, she was pretty, tenderly pretty, and the plain little frock framed her some way fittingly—as one would have one's favorite priceless picture framed.

"So I have found you at last!" said Geoffrey Gordon.

"How I have needed you, my dear!" "I am glad to be where I am needed," answered Bessie confusedly.

"But I am going to need you always," insisted this strange patient.

However, Bessie remained true to her word.

HAVE KEPT GALIC QUALITY

People of Anatolia Believed to Be Survivors of Those Who Founded Ancient Galatia.

Below the surface of the general Turkish-Moslem unity of Anatolia of today singular strata appear, both religious and racial. In the central ranges of the Pontic ridge, for instance, lie the villages of Turkish, "Kizilbashes"—"Redheads." They differ markedly in physical type from the other Anatolian peasants about them, being either light brunettes or blond. The beards of the men are light brown and curly, unlike those of the Turks. They are in all probability the survivors of old Gallic tribes who hewed their way into central Anatolia in the Third century before Christ, founded the Galatian kingdom, and later accepted Christianity. They now profess to be Mohammedans. But they do things that no orthodox Turk will do, writes W. L. Westermann in Asia Magazine. Their women, for example, go unveiled; and they eat with the men. Once a year a priest appears among them and in secret they partake of the communion. These Kizilbashes represent a case of incomplete conversion to Islam, as well as incomplete racial mixture. Throughout the Near East many such strange survivals are to be found, broken bits of ancient peoples, of primitive Christian beliefs, even of pre-Christian pagan religious rites—curious relics of the past.

VOICE RETAINS ITS QUALITY

Fixed Feature of Human Vocal Organs Which is Regarded as Something of a Phenomenon.

The changes that come with age, observes the editor of the New York Medical Journal, are so manifold and striking that we are inclined to overlook the persistence through the years of the quality of the voice, and yet this one fixed feature is remarkable. Even those who have lost most semblance to their former selves have not lost to any extent the peculiar organs of their voice.

When one notes that the organs which, in their functioning and, hence, in their structure, have so endured, are relatively small and delicate and in very frequent use, the phenomenon is of greater interest. A vocal apparatus may be injured or worn by overuse, and the power of a singer does not last for life. But, though its flexibility, power and range may diminish, for ordinary purposes the quality of speech remains easily recognizable and apparently but slightly influenced, compared with the all-too-apparent decay and destruction which has gone forward with the passage of a decade or two.

This Fit Most of Us.

Henry Ward Beecher, so the story goes, was once asked by a young preacher how he could make his congregation keep wide awake and attentive during his sermons. Beecher replied that he always had a man watch for sleepers, with instructions, as soon as he saw anyone start nodding or dozing, to hasten to the pulpit and wake up the preacher. Aren't you and I usually less sensible? Would we not be inclined to have the watcher wake up, not ourselves, but the fellow caught sleeping? In other words, aren't we disposed always to blame others? When things go wrong in an organization the president usually feels it is necessary for him to shake up his associates. His associates, in turn, usually start kicking up ructions with those under them. And workers, when they are dissatisfied, usually lay the blame, not at their own door, but at the door of the foreman or the department head or the big boss—somebody, anybody, except ourselves.

How about adding this Beecher quip to what we always carry around with us in our mind?—Forbes Magazine.

Some Detective.

A lot of bank notes had been stolen in London, and word reached a detective that an old woman who was a notorious "fence" had at least one of them. Proceeding to her house he made a thorough search of the rooms, but without success.

Turning to the woman and handing her back the candle she had lent him to work with, he said: "Well, this time I confess I am beaten. Tell me where it is, mother, and I'll get you off."

The promise was sufficient. "You've had it in your hand for the last half hour," she said, "and gave it me back this minute. It's wrapped around the candle."—Boston Transcript.

The Boat of Life.

The little boat of life labors in the trough of the sea, and we cannot see out at all. We are lifted to a wave-crest and look out, momentarily, over the troubled waters, happy if we can see, in the distance, the islands, with their fronded palms and mountainous, whose summits lift to the blue dome of the sky. Again the trough of the sea engulfs us, and we cannot see.

All I can offer is the vision from a single wave-crest: what the next may show, no one can foresee.—From "For What Do We Live," by Edward Howard Griggs.

One American Language.

When a "Pennsylvania Dutchman" is on his vacation, he is having his "off." When anything is finished, with those same folk, it is "all." So when said P. D. tells you his "off" is "all," you know his vacation has ended.—Farm Life.

WAYS OF FATE

By MILDRED WHITE

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

The girl who walked down the village street, passed the row of quiet, old-fashioned houses, to turn in at the bungalow door. To this frail girl, whose health made country living a present necessity, Janey's home, and Janey's bright society, were a salvation, and indeed without them Rosalind could not have stayed out her designated time. The new quiet life was very strange to the city-bred young woman, whose natural gayeties, perhaps, had been her disaster.

"Who lives in the bungalow with the sun dial in the garden?" Rosalind had asked her aunt the second day of her stay.

"Oh you mean Janey Pepper's place. We always call her Janey Pepper."

Rosalind met the mistress of the pretty bungalow soon after. Passing the garden of the sun dial when its mistress was there picking roses, that sweet-faced little lady invited her. Rosalind became immediately interested in Janey Pepper.

"Fate is the strangest thing," remarked Rosalind one day, "here am I, a lonely stranger in a strange place, carelessly passing a rose garden, I find you—and am lonely no more."

Janey Pepper bent over the silk cartain she was sewing.

"There's no understanding the ways of fate," she said, and laughed.

"Now take me, my dear, and the way I came to be married; had just settled down cheerfully to single blessedness when a bit of misfortune led me straight to my husband and happiness. That sounds contradictory I know, but let me tell you about it. I was living, at the time, in the little home my folks left to me. Then came the hard winter when my collie dog died and Black Beauty had to be sold, and I fell off a tall stool and twisted my back. I was standing on the stool to take down Uncle Silas' old photograph that I'd got pretty tired of seeing there, and after I fell there was no Black Beauty to carry me over to Doctor Hastings. So I put on a loose cape and walked, all twisted with pain, all the way to the doctor's office.

The doctor, himself, who had discharged an impotent chauffeur that morning and didn't know how he was to be driven around, was not very sympathetic, being troubled with his own problem. Then into the waiting room, where I was waiting to see how I was to get back to my home, came James N. Hodges of the grand house on the hill. Every one spoke of him as James N. Hodges, thinking always of the man's about importance. I recalled, as he sat there in scowling impotence, that his lovely butterfly wife had died last spring. I don't remember that James N. Hodges had ever noticed me, me before; he spoke now, gruffly.

"When will the doctor be at liberty?"

And, I impatient with my pain, replied, "I don't know anything about the doctor."

James N. Hodges looked in sudden displeasure at a person so rude. His fine eyes were reproachfully questioning.

The doctor opened the door and he was as crusty as either of us. "Janey Pepper," he said, "I can't take you home as I hoped to do. Don't know how I'm going to make the rounds myself; but if you had used a little common sense you would not be here with a lame back. Better have left Uncle Silas' picture hanging on the wall."

"I can stand the lame back better than I could stand Uncle Silas' picture," I retorted, and in a minute we were all three laughing together. James N. Hodges jumped to his feet.

"My car is at the door," he offered pleasantly. "I will be glad to drive you home. I can send it back for your use later, Doctor Hastings."

Janey smoothed thoughtfully the rose silk.

"That's how fate gave me my husband," she said, "though Jim says his is the gift. I do try to make him happy. That's why we left the gloomy old ancestral home on the hill for this lovely sunny place. For I soon learned that my Jim was not self important nor aloof, as we supposed, but just a man, plain, lonesome for common happiness and—love." Janey laughed.

"I'll be bound if he expected to find those blessings in old Doctor Hastings' office any more than I expected to find them—falling off a stool."

Early Rail-Disaster.

The first great railroad disaster in the United States was what for years referred to as the "Burlington Accident." It occurred near Burlington, N. J., in 1855, and caused the death and injury of a great number of persons.

The American public was horrified at the calamity, and popular feeling rose so high that new regulations in regard to the backing of trains, signaling, etc., were put into effect in every railway system in the country. Rev. Dr. Broadman, a celebrated Philadelphia clergyman, preached a famous sermon on the subject.

Not Missed.

"Do you remember the good old days when a candidate was expected to hire a brass band and treat the crowd?"

"Those weren't good old days," replied Senator Borghese. "They simply promoted bad liquor, bad music and bad politics."

KNEW A SWITCHWOMAN

Little Sammy, who had had an application of the rod at school, climbed upon his daddy's knee (daddy was a switchman) after supper, and inquired if they needed any switchwomen.

"No, son—why do you ask?"

"Well, I was just thinking if they did. I had one in mind I could recommend."

A TRUE FROG STORY

Some time ago a cement wall was erected in Newtown, Mo. Over two years later the wall was demolished and out fell a frog, the very color of the cement! It lay in the sun a few minutes and stretched itself, opened its eyes, and walked off.

SHARK ON SHIP'S BOW

A huge tiger shark, 30 feet long, was struck by the steamship American Legion on its way north from South America and the forward rush of the vessel held it on the bow several hours. The shark was measured and photographed.

ARKANSAS GAS WELLS AFIRE

While the drill stem was being removed from a gas well near Eldorado Arkansas, a crater 200 feet across was blown out and the gas caught fire. In turn igniting smaller wells near by. The flames which were beyond control could be seen for 10 miles. The output of the main well was about 75,000,000 cubic feet of gas a day.

UNDERGROUND STILL RAIDED

Near Bryanstown, Md., a large still in a dugout 25 feet underground, which it is said cost $5000 to equip was drenched with kerosene and burned by prohibition officers. The secret brewery employed 20 men and had all the paraphernalia to turn out booze by the barrel.

THE TELEPHONE ARMY

There are approximately 500,000 men and women employed in the telephone industry in the United States, not including the thousands engaged in the manufacture of telephone equipment. Of this vast army, two-thirds are women, of whom about 170,000 are the "Hello Girls," who answer the insistent demands of the telephone-using public, which makes billions of telephone calls a year, far more than are made in all the rest of the world put together.

FARM DEPARTMENT.

In order to determine the highest yielding variety of corn for that section of the State, six Taylor county farmers are cooperating with the College of Agriculture extension division in conducting corn variety tests. County Agent J. L. Miller says. Ten varieties are being tested by each of the farmers.

Legume crops are attracting lively interest among Breathitt county farmers, according to County Agent R. V. Trosper. Thirty-five of them are growing soybeans and sweet clover.

Orchard demonstrations being conducted by Livingston county farmers who are cooperating with the College of Agriculture extension division are accomplishing much in showing farmers in this section of the State the value of recommended orchard practices. County Agent L. C. Pace says. The demonstrators have just applied the fourth spray to their orchards. The trees in all cases are remarkably free of insects and diseases, he added.

Six thousand Barred Plymouth Rock hatching eggs and 500 baby chicks were distributed to McCreary county farmers this spring in furthering the poultry standardization campaign being conducted over the State by the College of Agriculture, according to County Agent W. B. Woodward.

Junior agricultural club members in Lewis county are giving plays and ice cream suppers as a means of raising money with which to send a delegate to Junior Week to be held June 19 to 24 at the College of Agriculture at Lexington for farm boys and girls of the State, County Agent R. O. Bates says.

Sulphur Dusted On Clothing Prevents Chigger Attacks.

Rare days in June—and July and August—tempt nature lovers into woods and fields and by the sides of babbling brooks. Frequently they return to undergo several days of acute torment due to attacks by chiggers, the tiny mites whose larvae attach themselves to the skin in any exposed spot.

The Bureau of Entomology of the United States Department of Agriculture has made a careful study of the habits of chiggers and methods of control, and suggest two ways of reducing the discomfort caused by chiggers.

Control Methods Suggested For Chiggers Or Hau Skippers.

Because of damage by insects, chiefly the hau skipper, about $1,000,000 worth of meat is annually condemned by Federal inspectors. Much greater damage in proportion to the value of meat handled undoubtedly is done by skippers, which are the larvae of the skipper fly, in small abattoirs and on farms where sanitary precautions are not generally so thorough as in the large meat-packing establishments.

This loss, according to the Bureau of Entomology of the United States Department of Agriculture, must largely be controlled by preventive measures. The larvae hibernate in cold temperatures and it takes a high temperature to kill them. Natural insect enemies, which are useful in the control of some harmful insects, are of little or no use in controlling the ham skipper because most of those which attack the skipper are pests in themselves.

The increased use of remade milk and cream—that is, milk and cream made from powdered or condensed milk and sweet-cream butter—has made necessary some method by which they may be distinguished from the natural products. Such a test has been devised by chemists of the United States Department of Agriculture, and it is now possible to detect as little as 10 per cent of remade milk in a mixture with natural pasteurized milk. If milk powder has been used in making the mixture, the amount that can be detected will depend on the degree of heat used in its manufacture.

The test for both milk and cream is based upon the color produced when the washed curd made from them is dissolved in sodium hydroxide. When this curd solution has stood for several hours a characteristic yellow color develops in the samples taken from remade milk and cream or mixtures containing them; samples of the natural products or only slight mixtures do not show it.

Remade milk and cream are wholesome foods if made properly from good, natural milk, but should be sold for what they are, and this test makes it possible for food officials to determine whether or not the consumer is being deceived.

Popularity of Morgan Horse Increasing In Southwest.

Because of its superiority in activity, hardiness, and stamina, the Morgan horse is increasing in popularity in the Southwest where stallions of the breed are being used to improve the saddle horses on the range. Used on the native cattle, they produce a useful animal that satisfies the ranchers' demands. At the Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock Show, held at Fort Worth, Tex., March 11 to 18, this year, there was a particularly good show of the breed. Sixteen horses were exhibited and there was a strong class of aged stallions. Red Oak 5-249 was the best aged stallion and champion Morgan. This horse, sired by General Gates was developed at the United States Morgan Horse Farm at Middlebury, Vt. The Morgans were placed by one of the best known horse judges in the country, who described the champion as one of the finest horses he had ever seen.

As a result of the efforts of the United States Department of Agriculture in improving the Morgan and in stimulating a renewal of interest in this useful American breed, good breeding specimens are now found in many parts of the country. In order to obtain suitable remounts for the service the Army has placed Morgan stallions in Kansas, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, and Texas. A few are owned privately in Illinois, Missouri and Iowa, but the stronghold of the breed remains in New England, particularly in Vermont, where it was first developed.

It will cost less for a farmer to help a neighbor rid his fields of chinch bugs than to combat them himself when they cross his property line, says the United States Department of Agriculture. Wheat fields developing infestation should be sprayed in May or early June, and cooperation helps.

"Dear Sir: Received your letter as per other side. In reply to same I beg to state:

"I owe you six and eighty-four; I would love to pay it somehow, But I haven't any money; So you see I can't do it now."

"If I have luck in making cotton, Why, I'll gladly pay it this fall, But I'm damn 'fraid the boll weevil Won't allow me to pay it at all."

"You may oblige me by being assured that I shall make this remittance at my earliest possible date, probably in this inst."—(L. C. Magazine.)

In central and eastern districts the warm weather and abundant moisture of middle May were generally favorable for farm work, says the Weather Bureau, United States Department of Agriculture. Plowing and seeding have made good progress and germination is satisfactory. The season is late in the far Northwest. Much land is flooded in the lower Mississippi Valley so that planting will be deferred. Floods have also occurred in Texas and northwestern Minnesota. Roads improved wherever the precipitation was light or moderate. Mountain roads are being opened in the northern Rockies.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA.

She—He always was a bad egg, but nobody seemed to notice it while he was rich.

He—Yes, he was all right until he was broke.

"Here's my bill," said Dr. Taylor, dentist. "Wish you would pay down $100, and then $25 per week."

"Sounds like buying an automobile," said the patient.

"I am," replied Dr. Taylor.—Charleston News and Courier.

"You did!" he charged.
"I did not!" she denied.
"You did!" he repeated.
"I did not!" she flung back.

"Well," said hubby, "one of us two is a very capable liar. But there is one thing which prevents me from saying which one."

"Modesty, I presume," retorted wife. And he gave up, beaten.

"Does yo' take this woman for thy lawfully wedded wife?" asked the colored person, glancing at the diminutive, watery-eyed, bow-legged bridegroom, who stood beside 210 pounds of feminine assurance.

"Ah takes nothin'," gloomily responded the bridegroom. "Ah's been tooked."—Legion Weekly.

Borem—Hello! What's your rush?
Subbus—I want to catch the 5:40 train.

Borem—But you've got half an hour.

Subbus—That's true but I have to count on being held up on my way to the station by three or four chumps who want to know what's my rush.

Flapper—Oh, isn't he just a wonderful pitcher? He bits the bat every time.—Chicago Tribune.

MAIL MOVEMENT

Receipts of fifty leading postoffices now are nearly twice as big as in 1913. The gain is a tenth over a year ago but a trifle under two years ago. Stamp sales reflect parcel post shipments and letter campaigns for business.

Two met on the bridge at midnight, Never to meet again—
One was a southbound yaller mule, The other a northbound train.

TRIP TO ENGLAND AWAITS BOY LIVE-STOCK JUDGES

The Maryland team of agricultural club boys who, in competition with similar teams from other States, won the grand prize of a trip to Europe, in the live-stock judging contest at the Southeastern Fair held at Atlanta, Georgia, last October, will sail from New York for England, June 14, on the Carmania, arriving in Liverpool about June 22.

The team, which is composed of Warren Rice, 17, of Sykesville, Joseph Glacken, 16, of Rising Sun, and Geo. Worrell, 16, of North East, was trained by W. C. Snarr of the cooperative extension service of the United States Department of Agriculture and the University of Maryland.

All the competitors in the contest were required to judge three rings of dairy cattle, three of beef cattle, two of sheep, and four of swine.

The boys will be accompanied on the European trip by C. A. Cohn, editor of the Southern Ruralist and superintendent of the fair's contest and by representatives of the cooperative extension service.

After attending the 81st Annual Exhibition of the Royal Agricultural Society of England at Cambridge, during the first week in July, the party will visit some of the famous herds of live stock in England and Scotland from which many noted animals in this country have come, returning on the Samaria arriving in New York about July 27.

HORSE IS MELANCHOLY OVER DEATH OF MATE

Middleport, O., June 3, Ed, aged 31, is grieving. Polly, 30, is dead.

Ed and Polly constituted the team of horses used by a local grocery firm twenty-five years. In recent years the horses were driven separately, one in the morning and the other in the afternoon. No one knew them apart except their owner.

BELL TRANSMITTED SPEECH WITHOUT WIRES IN 1880

Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone, in 1880 established his claim to recognition as a pioneer "wireless" enthusiast. He succeeded in transmitting speech without the use of wires, over a distance of some 200 yards. His method was to produce a beam of light varying in intensity, its fluctuations being produced by the vibration of a diaphragm by sound waves. At the receiving end the beam of light was concentrated upon a cell containing selenium the electrical conductivity of which varies in accordance with the amount of light to which it is exposed.

"Madam, I smell your beans burning," he shouted suddenly into the telephone.

Whereupon two very much alarmed ladies immediately rushed off kitchenwards, and the man had the wire to himself.

Colds & Headache

"For years we have used Black-Draught in our family, and I have never found any medicine that could take its place," writes Mr. H. A. Stacy, of Bradyville, Tenn. Mr. Stacy, who is a Rutherford County farmer, recommends Black-Draught as a medicine that should be kept in every household for use in the prompt treatment of many little ills to prevent them from developing into serious troubles.

THEDFORD'S BLACK-DRAUGHT

"It touches the liver and does the work," Mr. Stacy declared. "It is one of the best medicines I ever saw for a cold and headache. I don't know what we would do in our family if it wasn't for Black-Draught. It has saved us many dollars . . . I don't see how any family can hardly go without it. I know it is a reliable and splendid medicine to keep in the house. I recommend Black-Draught highly and am never without it."

STRAY STREAKS

(By Finko McFluke.)

Mrs. Barrass says since Ed has seen hand-plowing and hoeing her garden he has called for and used up every thing on the place, not in use, for sweat-rags.

If we were a bootlegger and wanted to change our occupation, or perhaps better, profession, we would learn to be a brick mason, as the money they get is picked up, not in violation of the criminal code.

Bill Schapmire, who has been having trouble with his spine, or as we generally say "down with his back" since early spring, stands no chance for recovery so that one may notice it until Missus Schapmire and the boys get the garden finally laid-by.

Albert Cox was in town Monday, don't know from whence he came or whether he went, but he avoided this office. We received direct information of vile threats he has been making against us and J. D. Claire. We carried a baseball bat with us every time we left the office Monday, not as a weapon of offense but simply for self-protection.

Bat Nall has been trying to get Ed Barrass to put on the Tuesday night shows again. That is the regular meeting night for the Knights of Pythias and Bat used to camouflage Missus Nall by making her believe that he just must go to the lodge and when once he got to town it was an easy matter to sneak into the picture show.

Speaking of camouflage reminds us of the case of Howard Ellis some weeks ago. We needed Howard at a session of a certain lodge in town one night, and not being able to locate him we called his residence. Missus Ellis told us that Howard had been talking about wanting to hear a certain Lawyer deliver his speech at a case on trial at that time, and that she suspected that we would find him at the Courthouse. We happened to know that the said lawyer had made his speech before Court adjourned that afternoon and so unwittingly told Mrs. Ellis, "Well," she says, "I believe that I also heard him say something about wanting to go to the Chapter meeting and I am almost certain that you will find him at the hall." We were talking over the phone in the Lodge Hall, but had gotten no bearings on Howard's case by this time and simply thanked Mrs. Ellis with the remark that we would try to find him there. Thus, in order to shield a fellow deceiver we put our aid by doing likewise and added another sin to the long list in the category of record against us.

Mrs. Barrass, in some manner, had gotten Ed to cut some weeds and other vegetation in her garden one day last week. Of course Ed was more than anxious to obliterate everything that did not look like peas, beans and carrots. After he had run his temperature up to about 120 f. h. and had gotten through, to his chagrin, he discovered that he had mown down a fine bed of horse radish. He went into the house and made confession to Missus Barrass, who had him go right back and dig up the roots so that she might prepare and eat it in order to prevent possible loss. Barrass, after digging a bushel and a half, lugged it in. An examination by Mrs. Barrass revealed the fact that it was nothing in the world but common dock, and good for nothing. What Ed said we dare not print here, neither do we wish to think much about it. He was already het-up and with the discovery nothing could keep the safety valve from blowing off. Don't speak of this in Ed's presence, it's not safe.

SULPHUR SPRINGS

Mrs. Lida Bean, of near this place, died Monday afternoon, of complications incident to old age. Funeral services were held at Mt. Vernon Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, after which the remains were buried in the Mt. Vernon cemetery. Mrs. Bean was a good Christian woman and loved by all who knew her. Her husband, Mr. W. F. Benn, preceded her to the grave only a few weeks, having died the latter part of April.

Mr. William Howard and family, of Vincennes, Ind., who have been visiting Mr. Howard's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Howard, of Concord, for several days, departed for their home last Sunday. They drove through in their car. Mr. Howard is another Ohio county boy who seems to be "making good" in the Whoosier State.

Mr. Harlan Murphy of near Jingo, has been talking and threatening to buy an automobile for two years but has not bought yet. Why don't

To Users Of Gasoline and Motor Oils

You've too much at stake in your motor equipment to be "spoofed" by mere claims about this or that thing in a gasoline or motor oil.

High-sounding technical terms don't insure you all the pep, power, mileage, safety and satisfaction you are entitled to in a motor fuel or lubricant.

But the word "Standard" does. And that's why it is the buy-word and the stand-by of the biggest users of gasoline and oils everywhere.

You can't "spoof" the big users. They know the dependability of the Standard Oil products and the responsibility of the Company back of them.

They know that if there were a better gasoline than New Crown or a better motor oil than Polarine, the Standard Oil Company would have it for them.

But "there ain't no such animal," no matter who says there is.

So good, so uniform, so dependable and so economical is New Crown

Gasoline that it is universally called "The Perfect Motor Fuel." It's even better than the requirements specified by the U. S. Government.

New Crown is made right here in Kentucky by a Kentucky firm, the Standard Oil Company (Kentucky) in its own refinery at Louisville, from which you get it fresh at all times—a firm that for 36 years has been a vital part of the business activities of the state of Kentucky and the economical life of its people.
